Exploring the unique challenges that boys face

Many boys and young men in our System of Care experience an array of barriers which hinder their ability to develop healthy minds, bodies, and emotional intelligence. This conference will provide attendees an opportunity to learn about the importance of providing gender responsive treatment when working with boys, young men, and fathers. Conference topics will discuss building emotional intelligence; male specific gay, bisexual, transgendered, intersex, questioning issues; body image; the importance of gender responsive treatment; and recognizing trauma in boys.

Learning Objectives

- Identify risk factors that affect resilience
- Identify opportunities for enhancement of emotional intelligence
- Recognize gender specific considerations that will inform outreach and treatment practices
