Tuesday, January 9th – Domestic Minor Sex Trafficking in Indian Country

The 7th Generation Workgroup decided to outreach and collaborate with counties and tribes, such as the Court of Southern California, and the Pala Band of Mission Indians. This collaboration aims to address the issue of domestic minor sex trafficking in Indian Country.

Center for Families, Children & the Courts | Operations & Programs Division

The group now includes representation from Los Angeles and San Diego. Paternal Opportunities, with Casey Family Programs and the Bay Area Collaborative of American Indian Resources, has provided an opportunity for community leaders to participate in a forum focused on ICWA and its implementation in San Francisco.

ICWA was implemented in San Francisco in 2017, which provided an opportunity for community leaders to participate in a forum focused on ICWA and its implementation in San Francisco.

Collaboration with the National Child Welfare Center for Tribes and the National Child Welfare Workforce Institute has been instrumental in advancing the understanding and implementation of ICWA.

Tribal STAR collaborated with KPBS and MakePeace Productions to support the implementation of ICWA through the courts.

The 14th Annual Tribal STAR Community Celebration was co-hosted by the County of San Diego, which aimed to strengthen the connections between Native American Families and Tribes, and has been working with Native American Families and Tribes in their database.

Working with Native American Families and Tribes in their database, Tribal STAR has been working to ensure that the implementation of ICWA is supported by collaboration with Native American Families and Tribes.

The webinar will examine Tribal justice throughout history and how its credibility and effectiveness have been impacted. This discussion will focus on the implementation of ICWA and how it has been applied in tribal courts.

This past month, the Center for Tribes (CBC4T), the National Child Welfare Workforce Institute, and the National Child Welfare Center for Tribes have provided training to tribal justice systems.

This training has helped to increase awareness of the limitations of ICWA training and has been pivotal in ensuring that training is aligned with the current science of infant brain development.

Any individual or organization interested in supporting ICWA and its implementation should contact POPS through Michael P. Huesca, Executive Director, or visit the Center for Tribes website at CBC4T: http://calswec.berkeley.edu/serve-indigenous-community-social-workers-change/

Published: 2017

Embracing the Potential of Grandparents in Child Welfare:

Alaska Native Grandparents Rearing Grandchildren: A Rural Community Story

This fact sheet summarizes the findings of a study that examined Native American grandparenting in rural communities. The study found that Alaska Native grandparents are often the primary caregivers for grandchildren, and that they play a vital role in promoting the well-being of their grandchildren.

Author(s): Haskins, Ron

National Campaign to Improve Foster Care

This article explored how early intervention and child welfare collaborate to support the well-being of children and families. The article highlighted the importance of early intervention and child welfare in promoting the development and well-being of children.

Author(s): Zinn, Andrew.; Orlebeke, Britany

Journal Name: Children and Youth Services Review v. 77, June 2017, p. 46-54

Email: cb_express@childwelfare.gov

Low-Income Working Families Research Report

This report shares findings from a study that examined how much States spend on low-income working families. The study found that States vary in their spending on low-income working families, and that there is a need for more targeted spending to support these families.

Author(s): Hamada, M.; Murphy, M.

Economic Security and Achievement of Low-Income Working Families

This report discusses the economic security and achievement of low-income working families. The report highlights the challenges faced by these families and the need for targeted interventions to support their well-being.

Author(s): Murphy, M.; Hamada, M.

Published: 2017

Attorney General points to lack of compliance and we need to address this as a training issue or we are really not doing our job.

Question for trainers of ICWA Core 3.0 Curriculum

December 19–20, 2017 at the Manchester Grand Hyatt San Diego.*

Full day classroom (8am – 5pm) in San Diego.*

Funding Opportunities

You can contact POPS through Michael P. Huesca, Executive Director, or visit the Center for Tribes website at CBC4T: http://calswec.berkeley.edu/serve-indigenous-community-social-workers-change/

Published: 2017

The updated state template will provide a full accounting of American Indian and Alaska Native children who are nominated by members of the 7th Generation Workgroup to Reduce Missing American Indian and Alaska Native Children.

Tribes Call For  Testimony on Children Who Went Missing at Boarding Schools

This webinar will examine Tribal justice throughout history and how its credibility and effectiveness have been impacted. This discussion will focus on the implementation of ICWA and how it has been applied in tribal courts.

Author(s): Williams, T.;

POLICY LEGISLATION AND LAW

Published: 2017

The Summit for Managers and Supervisors rolls out to Tribal communities.

This past month, the Center for Tribes (CBC4T), the National Child Welfare Workforce Institute, and the National Child Welfare Center for Tribes have provided training to tribal justice systems.

Anyone who works with Indian children should have an alignment of their thoughts and beliefs, and need to be aware of the limitations of ICWA training.

Published: 2017

Author(s): Zinn, Andrew.; Orlebeke, Britany

Published: 2017

Assessment of the Impact of the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) on American Indian and Alaska Native Children and Families

This brief describes why and how the assessment of the impact of ICWA on American Indian and Alaska Native children and families was conducted. The brief describes the methodology used and the findings of the assessment.

Let’s learn from each other and listen to their stories.

Listening to Their Stories, Misty Shasceen Taylor Helps to

Recruit American Indian and Alaska Native Students through Title IV-E Programs

Once admitted, students may qualify for financial support for their enrollment and their admission requirements.

INTERESTED IN SOCIAL WORK?

SERVE: Indigenous Social Workers for Change is a Title IV-E Stipend Program for the 7th Generation Workgroup to Reduce Missing American Indian and Alaska Native Children.

See the latest Academy for Professional Excellence and Tribal STAR Tweets

Canvassing of Grandparents in Rural Alaska: A Profile of Alaska Native Grandparents Rearing Grandchildren

This fact sheet summarizes the findings of a study that examined Alaska Native grandparents in rural communities. The study found that Alaska Native grandparents are often the primary caregivers for grandchildren, and that they play a vital role in promoting the well-being of their grandchildren.

Author(s): Dunn, J.

National Campaign to Improve Foster Care

Full day classroom (8am – 5pm) in San Diego.*