What’s one concern on your mind?

What’s one thing you are grateful for?
Talking Piece

- A physical reminder that the person talking should receive the group's full attention
- Gives fidgety students something tactile to calm them when it's their turn to speak.
- Can be a common classroom object or something symbolic: small globe for geography class, Shakespeare figurine for English, etc...

Defining Restorative Practices

Restorative Practices are based on principles that emphasize the importance of positive relationships as central to building community. They promote values and principles that use inclusive, collaborative approaches. When broadly and consistently implemented, they promote and strengthen positive, transformational school culture.

Restorative Practices also involve processes that repair relationships when harm has occurred. Accountability is achieved through understanding impact, repairing harm and restoration.

Fundamental Hypothesis

Human beings are happier, more cooperative and productive, and more likely to make positive changes in their behavior when those in positions of authority do things WITH them, rather than to them or for them.

"If systems are not innately restorative, then they cannot hope to effect change simply by providing an occasional restorative intervention. Restorative practices must be systemic, not situational."

Restorative Questions

Processing incidents of harm or conflict

Restorative Questions I
To Respond to Challenging Behavior
- What happened?
- What were you thinking of at the time?
- What have you thought about since?
- Who has been affected by what you have done? In what way?
- What do you think you need to do to make things right?
Restorative Questions II
To Help Those Harmed by Other's Actions

- What did you think when you realized what had happened?
- What impact has this incident had on you and others?
- What has been the hardest thing for you?
- What do you think needs to happen to make things right?

Purposes for Circles
