Responsive Integrated Health Solutions (RIHS) is a County of San Diego Behavioral Health contracted program of the Academy for Professional Excellence, and a project of San Diego State University School of Social Work.

Presented by: Terri Hagmann, CATC II, CSC

Course Description

Relapse Prevention is an important tool when working with people living with substance use disorder. In this interactive, skills-based training, learners will gain practical tools to partner with individuals maintaining their recovery in one-on-one and group settings by: identifying high risk situations, increasing self-efficacy, eliminating myths surrounding substance-use disorder (SUD), and managing lapses. Learners will be guided through a series of case vignettes and will work together to create relapse prevention plans. The prerequisite for this in-person skills course is the Overview of Relapse Prevention: Course Code BHE0095.
