Course Description

This course will offer an opportunity for learners to advance their understanding and practice of Motivational Interviewing (MI). In this interactive, skills-based training, learners will be able to apply what they already know about MI as well as implement advanced skills to increase their understanding and practical skills in the four processes of MI with an emphasis on complex reflections. This course is for individuals who have already completed an 11-hour Introduction to Motivational Interviewing (BH0003). If you completed this course with an agency other than RIHS, please email rihs@sdsu.edu with your completion certificate. Click here to see the training outline.

Learning Objectives

Upon completion of this training participants will be able to:

1. Apply the four fundamental processes of MI
2. Formulate various forms of reflections in order to assist an individual’s exploration of their own motivation for change
3. Demonstrate clear understanding of directionality of MI by distinguishing change talk from sustain talk
4. Demonstrate at least two skills to address sustain talk and discord
5. Elicit and build momentum toward commitment language that favors positive health and/or behavior change
6. Identify strategic directional MI skills when responding to languages including: Discord, Ambivalence, Sustain Talk, and Change Talk
7. Apply the basic four skills differentially in each of the four processes of MI to support an individual’s goal to change

Audience

All substance use disorder and mental health counselors, family & support partners, therapists, case managers, and other direct service providers working within the behavioral health system of care.
