

Description

Whether a training is in-person or virtual, the incorporated activities allow the learners to process the content, practice desired learning outcomes and leave the training with a memorable experience. Many trainers who develop presentations or curricula have expertise in the subject being facilitated but desire more support around how to make that subject's content connect with the learner and transfer to their day-to-day practice. This virtual workshop will explore the research behind why training activities need to create a meaningful experience and how to do so successfully and inclusively. Attendees are strongly encouraged to bring a current training idea or subject to this workshop as there will be time to incorporate real-life brainstorming to immediately apply the lessons learned.

Date and Time

DATE: December 14, 2021
TIME: 9:00 AM- 11:00 AM
Platform: ZOOM

Learning Objectives

After completion of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Explain the importance of designing training activities to meet desired learning objectives or outcomes.
- Identify at least one new training activity to incorporate into one's own training.
- Demonstrate how to use the Designing Training Activities for In-Person and Virtual Delivery Tip Sheet in a current or future training.

Intended Audience

All levels of curriculum development/training and facilitation skills are welcomed from beginner through advanced. For those who have not yet started their curriculum development or training journey, this will be an opportunity to begin building those skills. For those who are experienced curriculum designers and trainers, this will be an opportunity to expand those skills.

Registration

REGISTRATION DEADLINE: November 30, 2021

Zoom link will be sent with registration confirmation

If you have any questions, please contact:
apstraining@sdsu.edu

Presenter

Kat Preston-Wager, BA

Curriculum Development Specialist, Adult Protective Services Workforce Innovations (APSWI), Academy for Professional Excellence, San Diego State University School of Social Work

Kat Preston-Wager currently develops curricula and workforce development resources to strengthen APS programs across the nation. Kat has over 13 years of experience working with survivors of sexual assault and intimate partner violence with specialized skills in crisis intervention, motivational interviewing, advocacy, case management, facilitation and training. As a former Sexual Assault Response Coordinator for the Department of Navy, she trained to a wide variety of populations including policy makers, criminal justice system, military commands, and behavioral health professionals. She is passionate about ensuring those who make up the APS workforce have the tools, confidence, and practice they need to allow them to do their best work.