APS Quality Assurance Nuts & Bolts: Getting Started

This workshop will highlight the work of three California counties who started and in some cases re-started quality assurance (QA) practices in their APS programs. The panelists represent counties of different regions and sizes and at varying stages of QA implementation. They share a common theme in developing their QA plans: the value QA efforts bring to APS work, to the people doing the work, and to the people served.

The October 29 workshop extends the learning from our 2-part series on evaluation offered earlier in 2024, bringing forward experiences from California counties. If you appreciated learning about the robust system of QA developed in Washington state, you will love hearing how counties across California are seeking to achieve similar objectives locally!

Learning Objectives

- Learn how small, medium and large counties started their QA efforts
- Recognize your county's existing QA practices
- Identify QA tools and strategies used by others that can be leveraged to take the next step in your county.
